CLEP® exams are computer-based tests that cover intro-level college course material in 34 subjects. More than 2,900 U.S. colleges and universities grant credit to students with qualifying CLEP exam scores and allow them to skip the introductory courses in related subjects.

How do I get credit for CLEP?

Before you take a CLEP exam, review your college's CLEP policy to understand:

- Which CLEP exams your college accepts
- What score is needed to get credit
- How many credits are awarded

When you register for a CLEP exam, request that a copy of your score report be sent to your college. After receiving your score, the college will decide whether or not to award you credit for, or to exempt you from, one or more courses based on its CLEP credit policy.

How do I prepare for a CLEP exam?

CLEP study materials can be found on the CLEP website: clep.collegeboard.org/practice. Access sample test questions, exam topics, and other suggested study resources.
